The university and the city

Eötvös Loránd University, Faculty of Social Sciences (ELTE TáTK) was established in 2003 as the legal successor of the ELTE Sociological and Welfare Institute and Further Education Centre. Today the Faculty has six institutes and fourteen departments.

Department of European Studies at ELTE TáTK (Head: Dr. Ákos Kopper), coordinating department of the E.MA cooperation

The Department is responsible for the BA and MA programs of International Relations. We have a masters programme in European development policy and another one in international human rights law, and a doctoral program at the interdisciplinary doctoral school of the Faculty. Journals/book series are affiliated with the Department: Fundamentum www.fundamentum.hu, www.facebook.com/FundamentumFoldresz

Central European University (CEU):

CEU is a graduate English-language international university with students coming from almost 70 countries, the majority from Central and Eastern Europe and Russia, but also Africa, America, and Asia; its faculty from more than 30 countries--with the mix of nationalities increasing every year. The Department of Legal Studies at CEU (<http://legal.ceu.hu/>) was the first institution in this region to offer graduate instruction in Human Rights, including an LL.M degree in Human Rights.

Budapest: capital of Hungary, approx 1.7 mill inhabitants. Good public transport, affordable housing, lively international cultural and university scene. For details see: http://www.budapestinfo.hu/en/general_information.
